I don't see how elimination of the code requirement can do anything but help amateur radio. I believe underused parts of the amateur radio spectrum would get used more often. I think there will also be an increase in license upgrades and new licenses. There should always be an area in radio for people to use Morse code but it shouldn't be required for a license if you never intend on using code.